THE COMMANDING OFFICER

The initial performance of Theodore B. Sayre's new play, "The Commanding Officer", with Isabella Irving in the leading feminine role, at Jackson's Theatre last night was very satisfactory. The play itself is excellent. The plot is very complicated but is worked out carefully and naturally. It is the story of what a woman can do by indulging in the frail pleasure of carrying on a flirtation, seemingly innocent to her, with another man in her husband's absence. The play is raised above the melodrama by the thought which the writer works out and by the fineness of the feeling which is displayed. There was a good sized audience to greet the company, taking into consideration that the play was high priced and that Bridgeport can seldom see a play of this quality. There were several box parties.

The vital character in the play is the loyal little governess who stops at nothing to shield the Colonel and Mrs. Archer. She is the brains of the whole play and also the soul. Miss Irving played the part well. Robert T. Haines as Waring did most excellent work with his part, while Bruce McKee invested his role with a rare depth of expression. The entire company did well.

CROOKS STILL AT WORK

It would seem that the two crooks who swindled Albert Sprando of 120 High street out of $111 Wednesday morning at Catherine and Harrah avenue had removed to New Haven to work their game. In New Haven yesterday another Italian, Gastaranza Gathe reported to the police that $30 had been picked from his by two men answering the description of the two who were here. In New Haven however the victim said they pulled a gun on him. The police are inclined to discredit this lava charge.

MURPHY INJURED IN COLLISION WITH TROLLEY
